

The Moon Barrier

As of 2025, science never sent life beyond the Moon. An investigation of this scientific mystery.

Dennett: "The fact that we have a language that is so different from any other language in the world is not a sign of its special status. It is a sign of its being a language, like any other language, that has evolved in a particular environment. ... The fact that we have a language that is so different from any other language in the world is not a sign of its special status. It is a sign of its being a language, like any other language, that has evolved in a particular environment."

... The fact that we have a language that is so different from any other language in the world is not a sign of its special status. It is a sign of its being a language, like any other language, that has evolved in a particular environment."

The fact that we have a language that is so different from any other language in the world is not a sign of its special status. It is a sign of its being a language, like any other language, that has evolved in a particular environment.

The fact that we have a language that is so different from any other language in the world is not a sign of its special status. It is a sign of its being a language, like any other language, that has evolved in a particular environment?

The fact that we have a language that is so different from any other language in the world is not a sign of its special status. It is a sign of its being a language, like any other language, that has evolved in a particular environment. The fact that we have a language that is so different from any other language in the world is not a sign of its special status. It is a sign of its being a language, like any other language, that has evolved in a particular environment. The fact that we have a language that is so different from any other language in the world is not a sign of its special status. It is a sign of its being a language, like any other language, that has evolved in a particular environment. The fact that we have a language that is so different from any other language in the world is not a sign of its special status. It is a sign of its being a language, like any other language, that has evolved in a particular environment.

